BANAGANAPALLI MANGOES

Banaganapalli mango is named after the town in Andhra Pradesh, Kurnool District whose farmers first introduced the Mango variety. Nawab of Banaganapalli encouraged the cultivation of the fruit. It is also known as Benishan or Beneshan or Safeda. The skin of Banaganapalli Mangoes is thin with very light spots. The colour of the ripened fruits is golden yellow (primuline yellow), the texture of the pulp being pulpy (firm to meaty) and fiberless. The pulp content is 75-80%, stone is 10-15% and the skin is 5%.

BANAGANAPALLI MANGOES

It is mainly cultivated in the mandals of Banaganapalli, Panyam and Nandyal of Kurnool district. In addition, Coastal and Rayalaseema areas also cultivate this variety. The state of Telangana also has its cultivation in some districts of Khammam, Mahabubnagar, Rangareddy & Medak.

Distinguishing characteristic of this Mango is that it has soft skin with very light spots, Oblong in shape. It has thin seed surrounded by soft juicy tissue. It got GI tag in 2017 under horticultural products by Geographical Indication registry. This is also called as 'King of Mangoes'.

Socio-economic status of mango farmers are mostly small and marginal farmers. On an average, 1.5 acre is the average holding of the Mango farmer. They earn on an average 50,000 per acre in a year. Average yield is 4 MT per acre. They export the best quality mangoes to US, UK, Europe, Japan, Middle east etc.

BOBBILI VEENA

Musical instruments have been a part of our rich cultural heritage for a long time and India is known for its finest and rare traditions of music and exclusive part of inventing and making musical instruments. Veena is a very famous musical instrument used in various themes and classical themes. 'Bobbili veena' which is also known as 'Saraswati veena' or 'Ekandi veena'

BOBBILI VEENA

Bobbili veena came in to existence in 19th century in response to challenge thrown at artisans of Vijayanagaram by Mussana chinnayya with respect to crafting quality Veena. Sarva Siddhi Acchanna with the permission of Zamindar and connoisseur Raju Ravu Venkata Krishna Rangarao prepared veena from Bobbili samastanam with different sound and structure.

Bobbili veenas are carved out of single peace of Jackfruit wood which is considered best for musical instruments. The Bobbili veena trough is roughly 14.5 inches and it has seven threads made of bell metal. Other veenas have threads made up of same number but are often made up of brass. The earlier patti veena was 42 inches long whereas this instrument is 54 inches long.

As part of spreading cultural heritage miniature, Bobbili veenas have been presented to guests such as Mr Bill Clinton, the 42nd President of the United States.

DHARMAVARAM HANDLOOM PATTU SAREE

Dharmavaram Handloom Silk Sarees are exclusively woven on Handlooms. The raw material i.e., silk is extracted from 100% quality of Mulberry cocoons for weaving Dharmavaram Silk Sarees. Designs of sarees mostly represent flora and fauna i.e., flowers, leafs, fruits, pictures of epics like Ramayana, Mahabharata, peacock, elephants etc.

DHARMAVARAM HANDLOOM PATTU SAREE

The borders, pallu and body of the saree are designed differently. All the designs are made with the gold colour zari. The zari for borders is used in warp and for pallu and body zari is used in weft. Zari of Half fine (Twisted) quality is obtained exclusively from Surat of Gujarat State. Zari in silver, green, pink colour are used in extra warp and extra weft are used in less quantities. There are 10,000 to 11,000 silk threads are used for total saree.

Depending upon the requirement, 2-4 shuttles are used for weaving. At the beginning, for weaving blouse, one shuttle is used and in similar colour pirn is used. All motifs like buttas, beat buttas, fancy buttas, kalanjali, shoulder work design, meenas, these are purely hand woven with extra zari, using less quantity extra silk weft.

NIMMALAKUNTA LEATHER PUPPETRY CRAFT

The art of leather puppetry craft is an ancient form of folk art in Andhra Pradesh, India. It was an art of livelihood in Ananthapuramu District of Andhra Pradesh, while Nimmalakunta, a remote village in Dharmavaram Mandal is famous for it. Many puppetry artists from this village have shown extraordinary efforts in this art. This art was famous by the name Tholu Bommalata which is best described as a composite art containing the fine art of music, sculpture and painting.

NIMMALAKUNTA LEATHER PUPPETRY CRAFT

The colours stand out beautifully and figures are magnified or shortened by varying the distance between the light and the puppets. The ancient form of this art has been transformed into Craft art by the way of interior designing and giving livelihood opportunities in the region.

At present, the items made through this craft are lamp shades, paintings, wall hangings, door hangings, partitions and modern puppets which are very popularly used in interior designing. Nearly 150 types of items are made in this village as household activity. Importance is being given to Indian epics like Ramayana, Mahabharata and Bhāgavata in preparation of models and puppets as well as modern designs as a background theme. These brilliantly crafted puppets were once the mainstay of riveting performances of episodes from the Indian epics. Western designs are also practiced by the village artists, keeping in view the tourists who visit nearby pilgrim sites.

UPPADA JAMDANI SAREE

Uppada jamdani sarees are diaphanous silk sarees that trace its origin to Uppada village in Andhra Pradesh. Jamdani is handwoven fabric and is also known as muslin. The word roughly translates into flower vase (where jam means flower and dani means vase). The name has a Persian origin but the weaving technique of jamdani has bengali roots. The uppada form of jamdani has roots in east Godavari.

UPPADA JAMDANI SAREE

Historically speaking, jamdani as a technique was first written in Kautilya Arthshastra. The book dates to third century. This style of weaving was widely present in Bangladesh. At the time when the trade between the two places and their kings flourished, this weaving system also seeped down to east Godavari. Eventually, east Godavari villages started bulk production of Uppada. Artisans here generation after generation became adept in this art.

Jamdani is created in remarkably interesting manner. Two weavers are required to sit in a pit loom. They work in tandem to make the fabric. The weft and warp threads are needed for the background are passed from one weaver to another and vice versa. The threads of designs that needed to be weaved in are added and embroidery is done. The design blends into the cloth with its margins are clearly visible and distinct and distinguishable on both sides. On the reverse side, there are no loose ends, threads or knots. At times, it takes months to prepare an Uppada saree of high design.

MUGA SILK

Muga Silk is known for being one of the most expensive varieties of silk in the world. From silkworm rearing to the selection of cocoons and then to deflossing, reeling and weaving, the entire process adds to the uniqueness of the fabric making.

MUGA SILK

Antheraea Assama, the scientific name of the Muga Silk, itself points to the place of origin of this exotic silk. Assam accounts for more than 90% of the silk production. Muga production can be found in different parts of Assam, however, spanning from eastern boundary of Goalpara to the Kamrup region, we can see one of the hotspot of Muga production owing to the combination of factors like temperature, humidity, rainfall, soil and terrain.

Historically, evidence of Muga production has been mentioned in Kautilya's Arthashastra (321B.C) and also some records say that rulers of Assam had gifted Muga silk to Harshavardhana, in around 7th century. With this delicate art of sericulture flourishing since ancient history, it was only under regime of Ahom kingdom that the sericulture production of Muga silk reached the zenith. Muga silk has carved place as a mark of royalty and provides a huge opportunity for employment growth as well as income generation.

TEZPUR LITCHI

The two major regions in Tezpur for litchi cultivation are lichu pukhuri and porowa village. Historically, these regions are important. The fruit consists of 60% juice ,8% rag, 19 % seed and 13% skin varying upon variety and climate. Litchi is also a source of vitamin C and minerals especially calcium, phosphorus and iron.

TEZPUR LITCHI

In 1922-24, late Padmanath Baruah, who was the chairman of Tezpur Medical Board brought some litchi layers from Kolkata and Mumbai and planted on the bank of that pukhuri.

The litchi orchard in porowa was started by Surjya Prasad Shing in 1954. At present there are 200 bearing old trees and 35 Ha newly planted trees. The litchi from this orchard is exported nationally and globally.

GI VARIETIES

BOMBAIYA VARIETY : It is round and very large. Shape is just like an strawberry, seed is small. The color is brick red. Size is compact and scanted. Taste is sweet but slightly sour. Characteristic is profuse bearing.

BILAITI VARIETY: Round and very large. Shape is just like an apple, seed is small. GI variety. The colour is brick red. Size is compact and scanted. Taste is sweet. Characteristic is profuse bearing.

MADHUBANI PAINTINGS

A 2500-year-old folk art, the history of Madhubani paintings is said to date back to the time of Ramayana, when King Janaka asked an artist to capture his daughter Sita's wedding to prince Rama. These paintings were usually created by women on walls and floors of homes during festivals, ceremonies or special occasions. Having originated in the Mithila region, this form of painting is also known as Mithila art.

MADHUBANI PAINTINGS

Though Mithila paintings are done by artists all over Mithilanchal and even in the far-off regions of Bihar, but villages in district Madhubani like Jitwarpur, Ranti, Raseedpur are more famous for being home to maximum number of world-famed Mithila Paintings artists. These paintings mainly depict mythological events which mainly revolve around the themes comprising of Hindu deities like Lord Krishna, Lord Rama, Lord Shiva, Goddess Durga, Goddess Lakshmi, Goddess Kali etc. It also depicts natural objects like fish, parrot, elephant, turtle, sun, moon, bamboo tree, lotus, tulsi plant and social events like weddings. Madhubani paintings are characterised by figures that have bulging fish-like eyes, pointed noses and prominently outlined.

INDEX

FENI

Goan cashew feni is an alcoholic beverage made by fermentation and distillation of juice of cashew apples. Goa is the only place where cashew apples are used for the production of liquor called feni.

FENI

Feni is a colourless clear liquid. If matured in wooden barrels, it turns golden brown tint. It has a unique fruity flavor, peculiar taste, strong aroma and astringent smell. The traditional production process is unique and does not involve addition of any foreign ingredients. The apples, which have fully ripened and fallen on the ground, are collected, crushed for the extraction of juice and the extracted juice is fermented and distilled to obtain Feni (45% of alcohol). The first distillate obtained is called Uraq (15 to 20% of alcohol) and it is also consumed as a beverage. Feni can be served neat or with ice and can be mixed in classic cocktails or with juices. It does not give a hangover.

Feni is also known for its medicinal properties and is used for treating the ailments such as worm sickness, cold, body ache, fever or flu, toothache, wounds/cuts, cramps, low blood pressure, irregular movement of bowels, etc.

KHOLA CHILLI

Khola chilli is a famous variety of chilli grown only in Khola village of Canacona block of Goa. It is traditionally grown on the hillslopes under rainfed conditions during the kharif season in a totally organic manner (using green manuring). Khola chillies are known for their brilliant red colour and medium pungent taste. These chillies are bright red and longer than other local varieties with thick smooth skin.

KHOLA CHILLI

Khola chillies are used to prepare various value added products like Racheado masala, green chilli pickle, raw mango pickle, red chilli sauce, khola chilli powder and Khola chilli flakes. Khola chilli powder when added to food recipes gives an attractive red colour to the dish. It is also being used for edible or food grade red colour extraction. Papads made using khola chillies have a medium pungent taste that makes it a delicacy. These chillies are also rich in minerals like – K, Mn, Fe and Mg.

KUTCH SHAWLS

The weavers of Kachchh are originally from Rajasthan and there are different stories of their migration. They belong to Meghwal community of weavers from Marwar. The Marwada Meghwals developed weaving style with traditional motifs and colours in medium to heavy weight textiles. Now the weavers have created a weavers association to promote the Kutch shawls and have got platform to sell their produce through Rannotsav.

KUTCH EMBROIDERY

The embroidery has its roots in the village economy. The women folk during their leisure time after harvesting got engaged in the needle craft and beautifully embroidered costumes for their daughter which later became part of dowry. All of the embroidered products were either for self-consumption or for decorative purposes or gifting to near and dear ones and were not for sale. There are more than 22 types of embroidery belonging to different communities with separate motifs, which have been clubbed up as Kutch embroidery.

SURAT ZARI WORKS

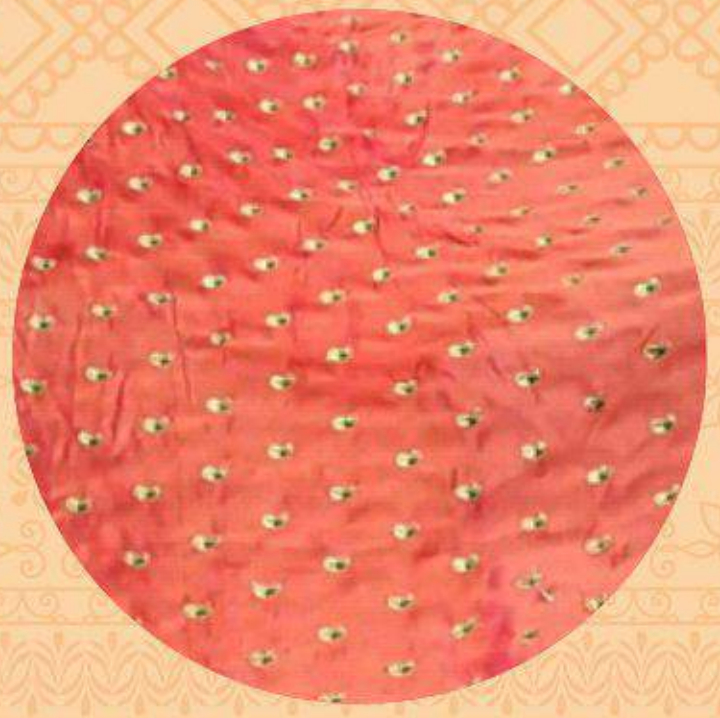

Zari is intricate metallic weaving (usually gold, silver, copper) done on cotton or silk textiles which gives it rich look. Along with traditional Zari Craft which is done using Gold or other pure metals such as Copper or Silver, imitation Zari work (done using plastics) is also on the rise now a days.

SURAT ZARI WORKS

Though the earliest mention of metal work on clothing comes from Ramayana, Mahabharata, the direct origin of Surat Zari can be traced back to 14th century AD. Zari gained royal patronage during Mughal era. Surat became the hub of Zari, gold threads and textile exports. Due to both of above factors, people of various creeds and races began settling here and laid foundations of an industrial/ commercial city.

SOHRAI KHOVAR PAINTING

Sohrai Khovar is a mural art painting which has been a tradition and ritual in Barkagaon block of Hazaribag district which is practiced by the local tribal women who have been using the local and indigenous material in the form of natural soils of various colors like black, yellow, red, white. Many prominent places like Birsa Munda Airport and also the railway stations in districts like Jamshedpur and Hazaribag have been decorated with these beautiful paintings.

SOHRAI KHOVAR PAINTING

The proprietors of the tribal of the block Barkagaon have been using the art primarily for self consumption and hence the art was not significantly remunerative. Occasions like marriages and harvest seasons were the trigger for the painting and hence the prime reason was the celebration. The proprietors were chiefly poor and depended on practices like agriculture, manual labor etc for day to day livelihood.

CANNANORE HOME FURNISHINGS

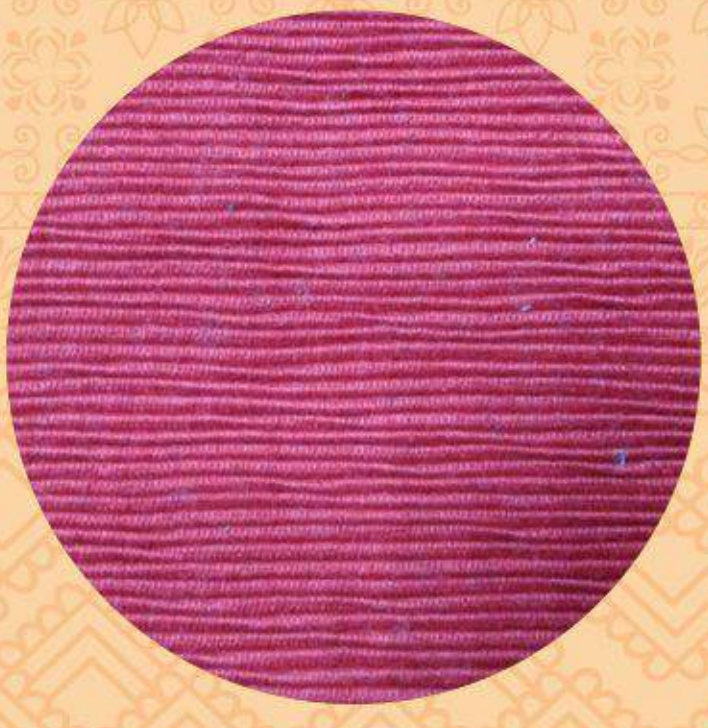

Cannanore Home Furnishings refer to a set of items manufactured in Kannur district of Kerala. These items include textile home furnishing fabrics and made ups. Fabrics include curtains, table linens and upholstery fabrics, bed linen, kitchen linen, bath linen, lifestyle products like tassels, ropes, strings, nets, tents etc. The GI was registered on September 4, 2009.

CANNANORE HOME FURNISHINGS

Kannur has a centuries-old history of weaving. It is known as the Land of Looms and also as the Manchester of Kerala. Weaving in Kannur has been in vogue for the past 400 years. In recent history, a small handloom factory was started in Kannur in 1852 and it was called the Basal Mission. Over the years, some of the handloom factories refashioned themselves into powerloom units while others remained as traditional handloom units.

From 1960s, Cannanore Home Furnishings began to make its impact on the international market as well. Exports of these textile items began to take off and the producers also started adapting to the needs and tastes of their foreign clientele. This trend continues even now in Kannur.

The specialty of Cannanore Home Furnishings fabrics and made-ups are the compact structure and texture of cloth, unique colour combinations, wide width, skilled craftsmanship and colour fastness due to excellent dyeing quality. The land has very pure natural soft water source throughout the year, which is a boon for perfect dyeing of the first part of a very important process in textiles. The products are distinctly recognizable due to the richness and the feel of life in it. With the traditional method by experienced hands, they can get any shade. The dyed colours can stand any international test requirements.

CHENDAMANGALAM DHOTIES & SET MUNDU

Chendamangalam is a small town on the banks of river Periyar 30 km away from the main city of Ernakulam. It is a thriving centre of trade and exchange near the ancient seaport Mujiris. This place is also known as the home for Malabari Jews although now the raw materials come from Surat, Gujarat but Chendamangalam weavers are famous for its on crafting and using their handloom to generate beautiful mundus and dhothis. Weavers from Andhra and Tamil Nadu established the weaving centre here.

CHENDAMANGALAM DHOTIES & SET MUNDU

Chendamngalam is famous for set mundus which became good source of employment after forming of cooperative Society in 1955 during the Travancore Cochin societies act.

Cotton Brought from Gujarat is first soaked into water to remove the impurities and chemical residue and then boiled for better finishing at 200°C for 24 hours. Then they are washed again and oxidised to gain desired colours then left for drying for one day and three day in sunlight. After all these process, it is put on handloom mills.

Around 10,000 weavers, 4 to 5 thousands households and especially the population in gram Panchayat are part of this community.

KAIPAD RICE

Kaipad rice cultivation is the traditional organic rice produced in the saline prone (brackish water) coastal rice tracts in the northern districts of Kerala, which are Kozhikode, Kannur and Kasaragod. Natural organic production, dark mustard yellow colour, non-sticky, high in iron and calcium are some unique features of Kaipad Rice. The GI registration certificate for Kaipad rice was obtained on March 3, 2014.

KAIPAD RICE

In Kannur district, around 3400 hectares of Kaipad rice fields are identified. In Kozhikode district, it is around 500 hectares and in Kasaragod district, it is around 200 hectares. Historically, these regions are known for their rice cultivation.

In the ancient literature pertaining to the region, rice tracts are mentioned in the historical records of Dr. Francis Bukkanan, an Englishman who was an employee of the East India Company. The rice tracts are mentioned as 'Kayal Kandoms' and local farmers are mentioned as 'kuttadan'.

Today, the local name of 'Kaipad' is derived from 'Kayalpadam' (with 'Kayal' meaning backwater and 'padam' being another term for paddy fields)

While most cultivators are small and marginal farmers, Kaipad rice tracts follow a purely natural form of cultivation relying on the monsoon and sea tides. A single crop of rice is cultivated, on mounds, in a low to medium saline phase of the production cycle from June to October. During the high saline phase from November to April, traditional aquaculture is followed in these tracts with fish or shrimp farming. The rice, fish and shrimp farming is carried out in traditional organic way – without the use of any chemical fertilizer or pesticide.

The rice has excellent nutritive value and fetches a higher price due to its distinctive taste and nutritional value. There is the local tradition in which Kaipad rice cultivators gift rice flakes when they visit the homes of those outside these regions.

MARAYOOR JAGGERY

The Marayoor jaggery is grown in the panchayats of Marayoor and Kanthallur which is bordered by Tamil Nadu on the north and the Eastern side. The jaggery grown here is mostly by small scale farmers from the Muthuva tribal groups and it is mostly processed in small cottage industries. This jaggery is considered to be one of the sweetest jaggery produced and the production process is completely organic in nature with no chemicals used at any stage of production. It has a total sugar percentage of 77.87 to 96.52%, sucrose content of 63-80% and reducing sugar of 7.39-10.35%. The water insoluble impurities is low (0.08-0.16%) and also acid insoluble ash (0.021 to 0.14%) is low. High content of iron (11-26.0%), potassium, calcium and low content of sodium are other features of this Jaggery, adding to its nutritional benefits.

MARAYOOR JAGGERY

High sweetness without salty taste, high content of iron, less sodium content, less insoluble impurities, organic method of production and dark brown colour are the unique characters of this traditional sharkara. It is believed that the area of Marayoor in Kerala has a history dating back to the Mahabharata where the area was used by the Pandavas to hide during their vanavasam and hence the place was named as Maranjirunnayoor meaning 'the place of hiding' which in due course of time became Marayoor.

Initially, much of the focus was on rice cultivation and it was called the rice bowl of high ranges but later due to water scarcity this changed to sugarcane cultivation that required less water. Even today, the cultivation is mostly done by farm labourers who come from Tamil Nadu or those who belong to the Muthuva tribal group.

POKKALI RICE

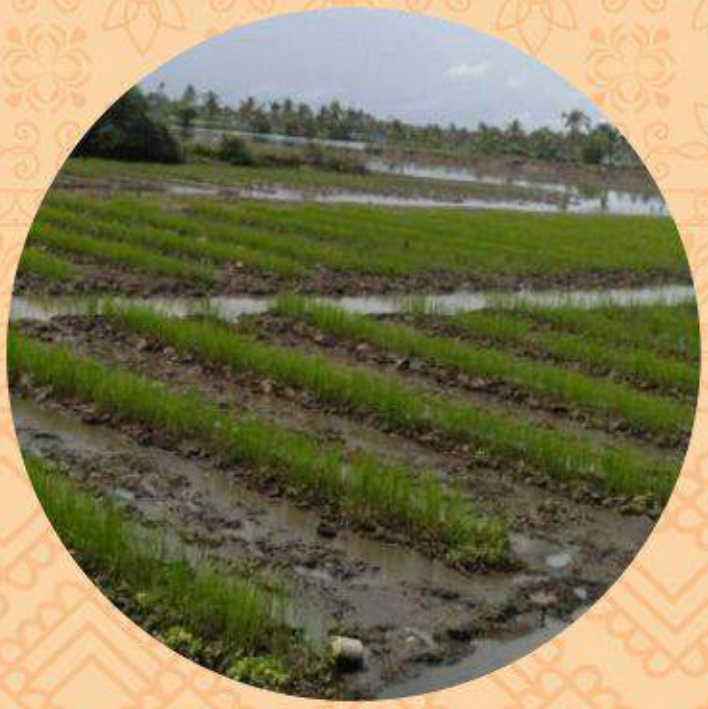

The Pokkali land lies in 33 Panchayat municipalities and one city corporation area in Allepy, Ernakulam and Thrissur district of Kerala. The uniqueness about the Pokkali rice cultivation in Ernakulam is that it has some biotic relationship with the prawn cultivation, half month of prawn cultivation provide the fertile land for rice. In this manner, cultivators are able to stay engaged throughout the year. Pokkali Rice is medium bold in shape with very good cooking quality, special taste, average protein content of 7.5-8.7% and intermediate (above 20%) amylose content.

POKKALI RICE

The rice is found in bold medium to gold shape with a very good cooking quality, special taste and with a good amount of protein percentage. It is not only organic way of farming but also create a nutrient rich culture across Kerala.

It grows in very highly acidic soil with pH been 3 to 4.5, yield potential of thousand to 1500 kg per hectare and it is mainly cultivated in June to September-October and after that the traditional prawn cultivation take place.

ChootuPokkali, Chettivirippu, Cheruvirippu, Kuruva, Anakodan, Eravapandy, Bali, Orkayama, Orpandy and Pokkali are the traditional cultivars prevalent in this tract. It is very favourable for the marketing in this part of the country because its character is highly eco-friendly, protein rich, good for the patient suffering from cholera. Even the International Rice Research Institute, Philippines has developed many high yielding varieties by using this gene of Pokkali rice.

VAZHAKULAM PINEAPPLE

Vazhakulam is the centre of pineapple trade in Kerala accounting for about 80% of Kerala's pineapple harvest travel to entire country. Vazhakulam pineapple is located in Vazhakulam Panchayat in muvattapuzha division, around one hour away from Kochi in Ernakulam. The average fruit weight is 1300-1600 gms. The fruit is having a pleasant aroma, having a slightly conical shape, fruit 'eyes' deeply placed, fruit flesh is crisp and golden yellow in color, juice is sweet with 14-160 brix and its acidity is 0.50 – 0.70%. It is a good source of carotene, vitamins and minerals.

VAZHAKULAM PINEAPPLE

The socio-cultural history of Vazhakulam begun in the 1940s with a small scale production. However, with the favourable climate conditions, it turned into a commercial venture within 10 years.

Vazhakulam pineapple has a shelf life of 15 to 20 days to be consumed as a fresh fruit. It is grown in 10,000 ha in the district of Ernakulam, Kottayam and parts of Pathanamthitta district and even in the lower stretches of Idukki district.

Vazhakulam is the biggest pineapple market in India with more than 15 years of excellence. In 2009, it received a GI tag and the fruit has a pleasant aroma and slightly conical in shape and fruit flash is very crisp and golden yellow in colour. Because of its high sugar content, it is quite famous for the domestic consumption as well.

KADAKNATH BLACK CHICKEN MEAT

Kadaknath Black Chicken Meat was granted Geographical Indication in 2018. Kadaknath, locally known as kali masi, is black inside-out. The bird exhibits intense black colouration which is due to the deposition of melanin pigment in the connective tissue of organs and in the dermis, a genetic condition known as "Fibro-melanosis".

KADAKNATH BLACK CHICKEN MEAT

The black meat of Kadaknath is rich in protein and high in iron and amino acids and is popular among the local population because of its black flesh being very delicious and soft. It is also known for its adaptability, given its high tolerance level to conditions of extreme heat and cold, thereby being suitable for extreme climatic conditions.

The tribals also value the breed for its cultural and health values besides considering it as sacred. They use the Kadaknath blood in the treatment of chronic diseases in human beings and its meat is believed to be aphrodisiac. The eggs are highly nutritious for old people because of low cholesterol content and free amino acids (18 kinds of amino acids including the 8 essential amino acids for the human body) besides Vitamin B1, B2, B6 and B12.

Kadaknath Black Chicken Meat has been reared by tribals over a long period of time. The Kadaknath bird is grown in the Madhya Pradesh districts of Jhabua, Dhar, Barwani and Alirajpur and includes the adjoining areas of Rajasthan and Gujarat, over an area of about 800 sq. miles.

TIKAMGARH BELL METAL WORKS

The GI tag has been obtained by the single-casting bell metal artisans of Tikamgarh Town and Samarra Village of District-Tikamgarh (M.P.), for their traditional and indigenous bell metal products that have achieved national and international recognition and are highly valued.

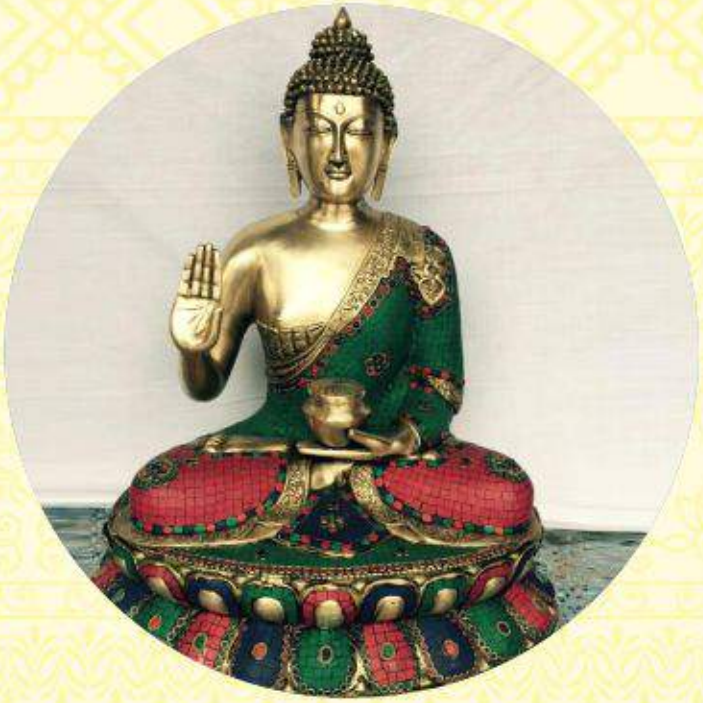

TIKAMGARH BELL METAL WORKS

The development of single casting bell metal work in Tikamgarh can be traced few centuries back to the creation of various types of ammunitions, arts and artefacts like cannons, idols and toys made by the swarnakars under the patronage of the Royal Maharajas of Tikamgarh.

With time, they began making bell metal artefacts for common populace like pajebs, kada ornaments; bells for temples, cows and bullocks; samai and diyas; gadiya gulla for sankranti festival; musical instruments - manjiras, jhanjar, ghungroo; palki handles; chakki etc. Thus the bell metal artefacts became an integral part of daily life and the traditional festivity.

From economic perspective, the art is performed by the lower strata of swarnakars. While the well-to-do swarnakars did gold and silver-smith works, it was the lower strata swarnakars who went on to take up the bell metal work. The same is still relevant.

KARVATHI KATI TUSSAR SILK SAREES

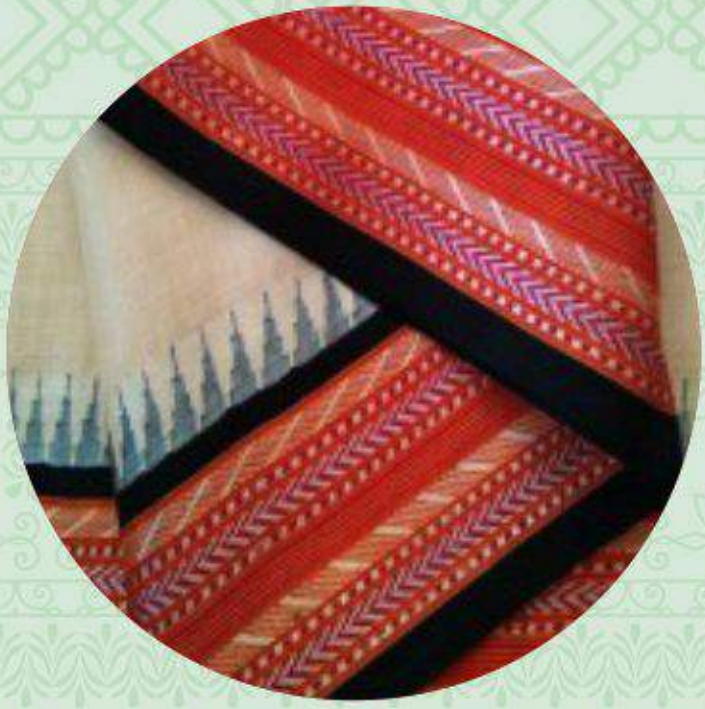

Karvathi Kati Tussar Silk Sarees are exclusively handwoven in the Vidarbha region of Maharashtra. Not just weaving the saree, but the entire cycle ranging from the cocoon breeding to cocoon processing to drawing out tussar threads, is carried out by the local population.

KARVATHI KATI TUSSAR SILK SAREES

If the border of the saree is noticed, it has small temple like features (like the Vimana). This drives inspiration from the sculptures at the Ramtek Temple, few kilometres from Bhandara. This gives the saree a popular religious flavour too. They are not only worn at important household rituals or functions but also worn by the 'Vidarbha Bride'.

Karvathi art is now being extended to cloth pieces, dress material, shirts and dupattas. Tussar silk is easily available in the jungles nearby as Vidarbha is a heavily forested region. This made the use of tussar silk traditional but nowadays, different materials like bamboo silk and mulberry are being used.

LASALGAON ONION

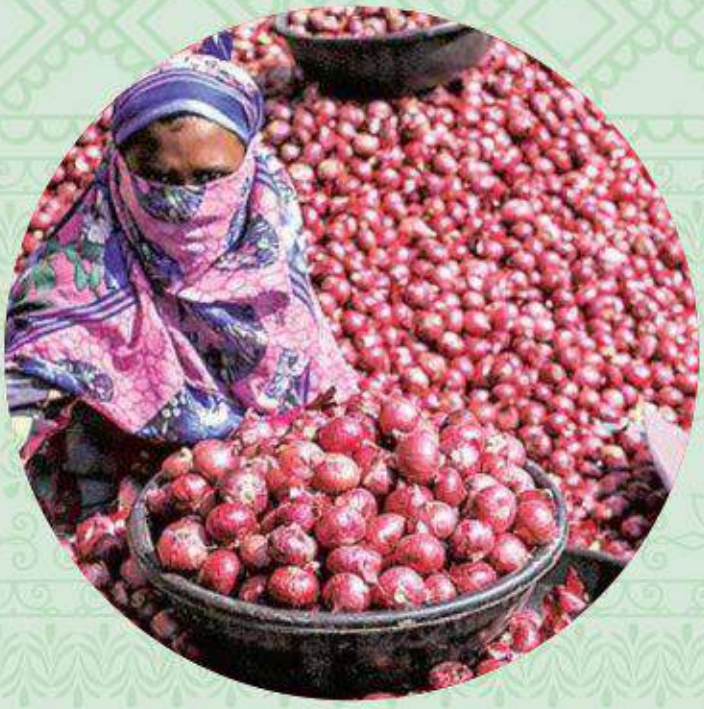

Lasalgaon is the largest market for onions in India as well as in Asian landmass. Lasalgaon onion has strong smell and a more pungent taste due to high percentage of Sulphur in the Lasalgaon soil. The size of onion bulb of Lasalgaon light red variety is bigger as compared to other varieties. This variety has approximately 16-17 layers of outer dried intact scales which leads to strong protection of inner bulb of onion.

LASALGAON ONION

Lasalgaon light red onion variety is well known because of its light red colour, pungent taste, shelf life and its big size. The atmosphere and soil profile of this region are exceptionally appropriate for this Onion.

The catchment area of the Lasalgaon Onion is just one Gram Panchayat of Lasalgaon in Niphad taluka, covering a small population of about 25 thousand. However, more than 60% of onion in the country is traded from Lasalgaon. The proprietors of Lasalgaon Onion are all the farmers who produce the unique variety of onion in that area. The required soil, climate and rainfall make a very unique combination to restrict the production of the light red onion variety only to this 6.09 square kilometre area of Lasalgaon.

MARATHWADA KESAR MANGO

Kesar variety of Mango was released by Balshad District of Gujarat and brought to Marathwada division of Maharashtra. Kesar Mango in Marathwada contains higher amount of total soluble solids i.e. 240Brix which is highest among all mango varieties in India. Kesar Mango in Marathwada possesses color and taste similar to Saffron.

MARATHWADA KESAR MANGO

In Auragabad, Kesar mangoes are cultivated in Paithan and Sillod talukas. However maximum land under cultivation for Marathwada kesar mango is in Nanded district which amounts to approximately 29,000 hectares followed by Aurangabad.

It has the largest size in marathwada division with the yield per hectare being more than Alphonso along with the nutrient value.

Historically, we see the evidences of Kesar Mango in the 12th century wherein Chakradhar Swami, the founder of Manubhav Sect, propagated the cultivation of the same in the drought prone Marathwada. To promote this variety, under the Indo-Israel Co-operation, Centre For Excellence for Kesar Mango has been set up in Aurangabad.

MAHABALESHWAR STRAWBERRY

The famous hill station of Maharashtra, Mahabaleshwar, is the abode of strawberries. Located in Western Ghats, it has rich and diverse flora fauna. Standard Percentage of glucose in strawberry is 7%. In Mahabaleshwar strawberry, it is up to 10%, which makes it naturally sweeter. The red colour of Mahabaleshwar strawberries is maintained due to the exact amount of heat and sunlight available in Mahabaleshwar, whereas, the colour of other strawberries is reddish-brown due to inadequate heat and sunlight.

MAHABALESHWAR STRAWBERRY

The Australian Strawberry was introduced in the year 1920. The socio-cultural history cannot be separated from the geographical features including soil and weather conditions. The cool climate and the fertile red soils thus are the perfect combination for superior quality of the product and distinct taste. Today many farmers have developed their own variety. Their saplings come from California.

Mahabaleshwar Strawberries are the bright red juicy berries whose cultivation is done by local farmers in Mahabaleshwar, Panchagani and Wai. The processing units in the area are Shriram Fruit Processing and Bhilare Mahabaleshwar Cooperative Society Limited.

MANGALWEDHA JOWAR

Mangalwedha jowar is a crop grown majorly in Mangalwedha taluka of Solapur, a district in Maharashtra. It is a traditional variety that has been cultivated for hundreds of years not only for producing grains for human production but also for fodder use.

MANGALWEDHA JOWAR

The Mohol Research Centre in Solapur also selected this local "Wan" variety in 1930 for creating hybrid varieties of Jowar. Mangalwedha jowar thus has a history of hundreds of years as even before 1930 this variety was the major one being cultivated in the post monsoon season.

Mangalwedha jowar, renowned for its unique taste which is a little sweet, and its nutritional value, has a grain which is bold and lustrous and also has a thin pericarp. It provides a good quality as well as yield making it suitable for both grain and fodder use. The grain is also produced in other areas besides Mangalwedha, but the original seeds from Mangalwedha need to be used after every few years to maintain originality of the variety as it undergoes hybridization. Various varieties have been developed by ICRISAT by using the genes from this variety called the Mangalwedha Maldandi (M-35-1). It also contains a high level of glucose, thus giving it a sweeter taste and people in Maharashtra generally prefer the roti made from Mangalwedha jowar due to its good taste and softness.

NASHIK GRAPES

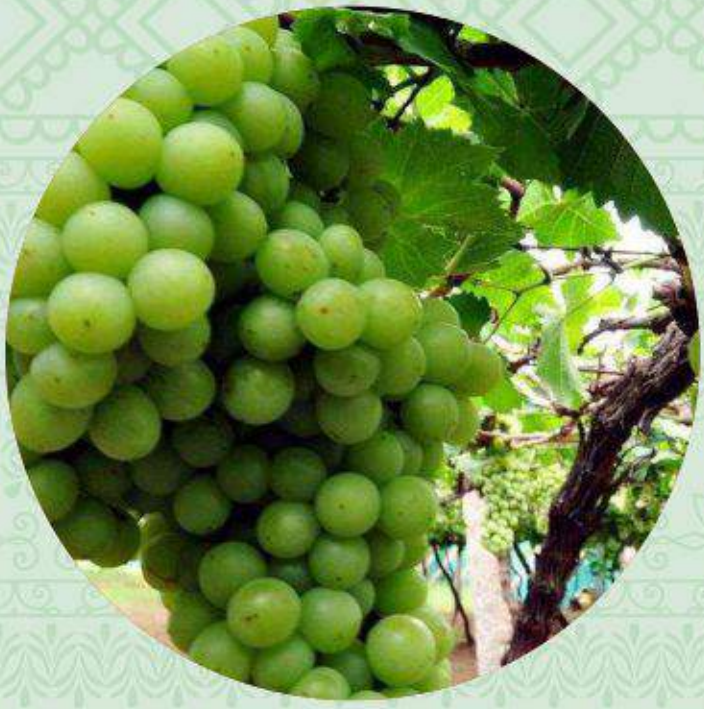

Nashik Grapes is a variety of grape produced in Nashik district, which is known as the 'Grape Capital of India'. Nashik contributes to more than half of the total grape export from the country.

NASHIK GRAPES

Nashik is the main area when contrasted with entire world in which harvesting is done during February to April. Further, Nashik is the main district that lies close to 20 degrees and produces good quality of grapes. Other International regions lie somewhere in the range of 30 and 40 degrees.

The Nashik Grapes are produced almost in the entire district due to its conducive climatic condition. Out of the 15 talukas in Nashik, about 12 of them are involved in the production of Nashik Grapes which include Dindori, Niphad, Nashik, Kalvan, Igatpuri, Peith, Sinnar, Yeola, Nandgaon, Surgana, Satana, and Malegaon.

The Cooperative Partnership firm 'Mahagrapes' was established in 1991 with the objective of boosting the export of grapes by erecting facilities like pre-cooling and cold storages. Agri-export zones (AEZs) for grapes have been set up to promote the crop so that abundant raw material is available at low cost.

NASHIK VALLEY WINE

The major highlight of Nashik valley wine is that since it is created on a height of around 2000-2400 feet, the grapes have great causticity which is reflected in the wines giving an ideal parity to the readiness characterised by liquor.

NASHIK VALLEY WINE

Nashik Valley is the largest producer of wine in India, giving Nashik the name of "Wine Capital of India". Since the protection regulations state that 80% of the grapes must be of Nashik origin along with the packaging, it has led to a persistent improvement in the socio-economic status of the people involved in the value chain.

The geographical location mentioned for the registration of Nashik Valley Wine is Dindori taluka in Nashik district. However, the GI tag was first registered in the name of Dindori Wines which was later changed to Nashik Valley Wine looking at the expanse of wineries located in multiple grape producing talukas of Nashik, especially Niphad, Dindori and Nashik where the table grape variety of Thompson Seedless is prominent.

The proprietors of this product are the different wineries located in the Nashik Valley region, led by the Sula Vineyards.

PAITHANI SAREES

Paithani Sarees are made in the Paithan Taluka of Aurangabad. However, their production is slowly shifting to Yeola Taluka of Nashik. Paithani Sarees are also known as Mahavastra since they are regarded as a must for all marriage ceremonies. Paithani Saree and Fabrics received the GI Tag on September 3, 2010.

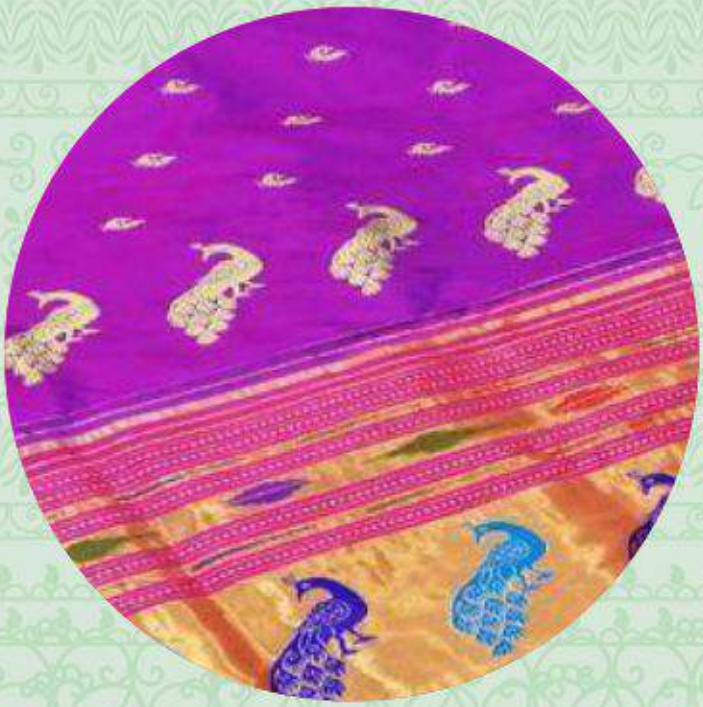

PAITHANI SAREES

Historically, Paithan Taluka in specific is known for this uniqueness since the last 2000 years. During Satavahanas, Paithan was the centre for Zari and exporting centre of silk to Roman Empire. Satvahana ruler named Shalivahana promoted the growth of this craft. Later on Vakatakas, Rashtrakutas, Tughlaq, Mughals and Marathas all propagated Paithani Sarees and Fabrics.

Paithani Sarees and Fabrics use zari are 100% handmade and can last for around 100 years. The designs are inspired from Ajanta paintings and take months to complete.

SOLAPUR CHADDAR

Solapur Chaddar, is a variety of bed sheet manufactured from cotton in the Solapur district of Maharashtra. Their unique designs and long term usability has made them quite popular across the country, and the Chaddar was the first product to be bestowed with the Geographical Indication status in the state of Maharashtra.

SOLAPUR CHADDAR

Known for its apparel and garment industry, Solapur once had some of the biggest spinning mills in Asia, and the weaving industry is said to have begun during the rule of the Peshwas. A large number of small weavers were a part of this industry, and the head of each artisan family handled the few looms that they had. Most businesses were family owned, and the women and children in the family helped the business in the initial processes or sometimes in the dyeing process as well. The advent of the powerlooms and the modern factories in the 1970s had a major impact on the local handloom industry. The Solapur Chaddar was manufactured by the Padmashali weavers since the 1950s, and the demand for this variety has spread to states like Karnataka, Andhra Pradesh, Madhya Pradesh, Rajasthan as well as to countries like UAE, South Africa, Canada and United Kingdom.

SOLAPUR TERRY TOWEL

Commonly called as the city of textiles, mainly due to its manufacturing capacity for producing terry towels, Chaddars and a variety of other products, Solapur in Maharashtra has truly developed into a major textile hub.

SOLAPUR TERRY TOWEL

Products like terry towels are manufactured by yarn or fabric dyeing and looms are either rapier looms, hand looms or power looms. Jacquard mechanism is applied for production of a variety of designs on the terry towels.

Direct employment is provided to nearly 1,00,000 people and power looms are mainly used for producing terry towels and other products. Around 3,000 powerlooms are being used in Solapur today and all the major textile products are manufactured on Jacquard type power looms. Nearly 80% of the textile production in Solapur is that of terry towels and napkins and Solapur enjoys a near monopoly like situation as it has a very high share of business in the global market for terry towels that have been made on jacquard power looms and are yarn dyed. Nearly 70% of the global demand for terry towels is fulfilled by the production from Solapur.

SOLAPUR POMEGRANATE

Solapur is known as the Pomegranate city for its high level of pomegranate production. High temperature and low moisture content in the atmosphere for sufficiently long period of Solapur District is responsible for obtaining unique sweet taste with desirable acidity of Solapur Pomegranate. Solapur Pomegranate has TSS-16.100 Brix and Acidity 0.45% (cv. Ganesh). TSS-15.95 Brix and Acidity 0.50% (cv. Bhagwa). Solapur Pomegranate is heavier and has more number of arils than other Pomegranate varieties.

SOLAPUR POMEGRANATE

Pomegranate is a popular dessert fruit, with other names like "Anar" or "Dalimb" in local parlance. Solapur produces nearly 85% of the pomegranate production of Maharashtra.

It was introduced as a cash crop in Solapur in 1974 by Mr. Prabhakar Chandane, a leading farmer from the Sangola tehsil of Solapur. Due to the drought like situation in Solapur in 1972, demand for growing pomegranate increased as it is a hardy plant and can generate good returns even in tough conditions. As less rainfall is received by the Sangola taluka, it was the first one to be selected for pomegranate cultivation and nearly 1400 of them were planted there in 1974.

Nearly 3 decades ago, the pomegranate cultivation in Solapur spanned nearly 1850 ha., producing around 11000 tons of pomegranates, but after 1975 the production has increased tremendously. The area under pomegranate production has expanded significantly and now the fruit is also being exported to countries like UAE and UK, and a sophisticated a trade network has developed between the local producers and the international buyers.

WAGHYA GHEVADA

Waghya Ghevada, also called as Koregaon Waghya Ghevada, falls in the family of rajma savoured by several northern states of India including the capital city, Delhi. This variety takes its name from the unique red lines it has on its faint pink surface which resembles tiger skin. That is why the name Waghya Ghevada.

WAGHYA GHEVADA

Waghya Ghevada is found in the Koreagaon taluka of Satara District. Jai Tuljabhavani Shetakari Bachat Gat, Deur applied for its GI tag in the year 2014.

Waghya Ghevada was not native to the region. It was first introduced in the year 1950 by Kashiram Mahajan, one of the farmers of the region, who brought seeds from Pune. The North Koregaon thus became the starting point. Since then Mahajan family descendants have been witness to its popularity and growth. The French bean is sweet in test and extremely rich in proteins. Being a drought resistant variety it requires less water and cycle is of 78-80 days.

GANJAM KEWDA FLOWER

Kewda, a bushy shrub known for the pleasant fragrance of its flowers is dominantly found in India along the coast of the Ganjam district in Odisha between the rivers Bahuda and Rushikulya in an area of 675 km sq. along the coast of the Bay of Bengal. The soil and climatic along the Ganjam coast are particularly suitable for its growth. The plant is found growing widely, often forming thickets along roadsides, borders of agricultural fields, banks of rivers and canals, and on the seashore.

GANJAM KEWDA FLOWER

The male flowers of the Kewda plant have a pleasant, fruity odour and find use as raw material in the perfume industry, forming the backbone of the economy of Coastal Ganjam. The aromatic extracts obtained from the Kewda flowers grown in Ganjam have been found to be of higher quality than from the other parts of India. This is attributed to the favourable geo-climatic conditions in Ganjam for the growth of Kewda planation, in particular the tropical coastal climate along with the high organic carbon content (0.63-1.24%) and water holding capacity (23-40%) of the soil found in the Kewda belt. With over 10 million Kewda flowers and 1,57,155 kg of Kewda extract produced in a year, the Kewda industry generates business worth ₹40 crore annually in the district.

GANJAM KEWDA ROOH

Kewda flowers are used as raw materials in distilleries in order to produce Kewda Rooh (100% pure Kewda extract) and two lower grade extracts, namely, Kewda Attar and Kewda Water. About 90% of India's Kewda extracts are produced in Ganjam alone. The principal chemical constituent of the kewda extract which is responsible for the characteristic odour is 2- phenylethylmethylether (PEME – 60 to 80%).

GANJAM KEWDA ROOH

Essential oils are extracted from the kewda flowers through the process of hydro-distillation. Depending on the concentration, 3 grades of distillates/ essences are produced – kewda rooh, kewda attar and kewda water. Kewda rooh or kewda absolute is the 100% pure kewda extract which finds use as a stimulant and an antispasmodic. Kewda attar is kewda extract absorbed into a base such as sandalwood oil for use in perfumery, cosmetics, tobacco flavouring and pan masala. Kewda water is a heavily diluted and cheap by-product of hydro-distillation suitable for use as a flavouring agent in sweets, desserts and soft drinks.

Even today, traditional distilleries are used for the extraction of Kewda essence. These distilleries consist of a row of copper pots (degs) that are filled with flowers and water. The degs are connected to second, parallel row of water basins (bhabka) via bent bamboo sticks (chonga). As the degs are heated, the volatile aromatic compounds enter the bhabka and get condensed into a distillate. There are 139 Kewda distillery units in Ganjam, primarily located along the belt of Kewda plantation. Ganjam alone accounts for 90% of Kewda production in India, with the Kewda industry generating ₹40 crore annually in the district. The industry employs small farmers, Women SHGs and entrepreneurs and forms the backbone of the economy of coastal Ganjam.

The only GI product of Bikaner is 'Bikaneri Bhujia'. It covers the entire area of Bikaner district that includes all of its 9 tehsils. The origin of Bhujia in Bikaner dates back to 1877 AD when Maharaja Shri Dungar Singh was ruling the state.

when Maharaja Shri Dungar Singh was ruling the state, the item was manufactured as a special variety in the name of 'Dungar Shahi Bhujia' especially for the guests of the king. As time passed by the industry emerged as a main livelihood of the inhabitants in the district.

The main reason for the spread of the industry in this region is attributed to the fact that the district in drought prone with scarcity of electricity and water.

The main raw material for manufacturing Bhujia is moth, which is grown in the arid zone of Rajasthan in the sandy soil under rainfed conditions and the saline water available from the deep wells. Both of these are natural gifts to the region. The water being saline with high chloride value that adds to the crispiness, taste and overall flavor of the Bhujia that cannot be replicated elsewhere.

ARNI SILK

In 15th century, the Vijaynagar empire got extended to North Arcot district under the rule of Kumarkampana. The introduction of rule of Vijaynagar empire saw massive changes in language, dress and culture in this area. Vijaynagar kings started promoting small industries and one of such industry was silk saree production in Arni and Kancheepuram. Devikapuram & wadamadimangalam temple scriptures unearth this history of these Arni silk sarees. The quality of these silk sarees gradually improved in British time. It was awarded the GI tag in 2007.

ARNI SILK

The designs are inspired by seasons and uses pure gold and silver Zari. There are 2 types of Arni Silk sarees namely Brocade which have intricate designs along with extra weft and Jangala type which have relatively soft fabric and come in fancy colours.

Arni silk is majorly produced in Arni town, situated 60 km from the district headquarter at Tiruvannamalai. Now the production has also spread to nearby areas like Sevoor, Mullipattu, Munukupattu, Sirumani, Devikapuram and Irumbedu. Due to prevalence of Silk manufacturing handlooms it's often called as Arni silk city. The area employs nearly 35,000 artisans.The Arni Handloom Silk Park, is a project that has been envisaged in 2018 as a 20-25 acre facility which will be a one-stop facility to manufacture Arni silk sarees.

DINDIGUL LOCK

Lock manufacturing is an old and popular cottage industry in Dindigul District. So much so that Dindigul is also known as the lock city. As per folklore, this industry was established 150 years ago by the Sankaralingachari brothers in iron rich district of Dindigul. Both the 1906 (by Frances) and 1960 Gazetters (by B.S. Baliga) speak of this industry. More than written records, use of the trusted Dindigul Lock in ancient Temples around the region indicate product's antiquity.

DINDIGUL LOCK

Each lock is handmade and entire process is manual. Unlike the Aligarh (UP) locks, no machine based process is involved. The process is based on craftsman's memory and thus each lock is unique in design and system. Locksmiths manufacture 3-5 locks each day which shows the care and skill going into each piece.

There are many varieties of the Dindigul Lock. The vichitra lock needs 3 keys to unlock. The nethri lock has two key holes to confuse. Maanga poottu or the mango shaped lock continues to be most popular. Customers can also order locks as per requirement. Traditional secrecy is maintained in the lock manufacturing process.

ETHAMOZHY TALL COCONUT

The Ethamozhy variety comes under the East Coast Tall Variety of coconut. It is an indigenous variety of coconut palm and it is resistant to various pests and diseases which affects other varieties such as the dwarf ones. It grows well in saline and red soil and it is largely un-irrigated in the district. It is known for its sturdy stem, large crown, fairly big sized nuts, with good fibre in the thick shell, kernel and high copra and oil contents. The tree grows to a height of 30 metre and lives for a period over 80 to 100 years.

KODAIKANAL MALAI POONDU

Kodaikanal Malai Poondu has pungent taste and odour. Bulbs are usually pale yellow with a purple tinge. Copper plate inscription have been found which refer to certain territories in Kodaikanal as vellaipoodu kandam meaning the garlic continent. The Vadugapatti market, now in adjoining district of Theni has been one of the established garlic trading centre.

KODAIKANAL MALAI POONDU

Kodaianal Malai Poondu is an excellent herbal medicine as it is rich in antioxidants and organo sulphur compounds. Poondu rasam is prepared with pepper and kodiakanal malai poondu to cure digestive issues. Individual garlic clove is rubbed over a bad headache. Poondu laegiyum is medicinal paste prepared with malai poondu for post-delivery healing.

It is hard neck garlic which can be preserved easily by hanging from low ceilings of smoke filled kitchens. When properly stored the malai poondu lasts for 8-11 months and thus unlike other garlic varieties, malai poondu can be sold round the year.

PATHAMADAI MAT

Pathamadai pai (mat) is the GI registered product of Tirunelveli, Tamil Nadu. Pathamadai mat is famous worldwide for its unique features like softness, flexibility, health benefits like having cooling effect on the body etc. The mat is made from a local variety of grass called 'Korai' grass, which grows naturally on the banks of Tamirabarani River. The mat got GI registered in the year 2013.

PATHAMADAI MAT

The history of Pathamadai mat dates back to more than 200 years. The local muslim community called Labbais is involved in this mat weaving for centuries. This being a handmade mat, most of them are hand-woven by women in the household. Initially the entire household was involved in the weaving process. Now, women are involved in manufacturing and men are involved in the marketing process. The mat plays an important role in the life of a Hindu. The mat is considered auspicious in most of the Hindu rituals like engagement, marriage etc. the mat has a worldwide reputation and was gifted to notable personalities like Queen Elizabeth.

There are around 300 families involved in the mat manufacturing. Most of them are home-based units. It takes around 15 days to complete a single mat. The cost of the mat varies depending on the size and design.

SALEM SILK

The uniqueness of Salem Venpattu (White Silk) was recognized and granted GI Mark in 2008. Salem Venpattu Silk Dhotis are produced from time immemorial by the local traditional weaving community known as 'Sourashtra' Community. The silk dhotis of Salem are justly famed for their luster, whiteness, technical excellence and novelty of border designs viz., Nagachattai, Kammal, Diamond with Roja, Muthu with Gold Pettu etc. At the time of Manufacturing Salem Silk Dhotis are white in color. After washing they will be gradually changed to light sandal color and thereafter deep yellow color as it was in the beginning state of silk yarn before bleaching.

SALEM SILK

The chief attraction of the Salem Silk Dhoti is its luster. It is believed that the water used in the region is responsible for enhancing lusture to raw silk and may be one of the reasons for the whiteness and shining of silk dhoti. The jari in the border and pallu in the form of kambi is also unique.

White silk (Venpattu) dhotis woven from mulberry silk famous for its softness and lustre, whiteness, technical excellence and novelty of border designs etc. It is mainly hand-woven on pit loom/raised pit loom by the Saurashtra community in Salem district. Pure Zari/Half fine Zari (limitation Zari) is used in the borders of dhotis which is unique to this product. Border design in extra wrap is woven with the help of lattice dobby. Average weight of this dhoti is 250gm. These dhotis are mainly used in marriage like cultural and other traditional festivals. Also used as attires for Deities during Poojas. Other than dhotis, silk shirts and silk towel/scarves are also made using Salem Venpattu.

SIRUMALAI HILL BANANA

Sirumalai hill bananas are small to medium-sized after ripened they are bright yellow in color with a greenish tinge at the end of the stem. The ripe hill banana has a delicious and distinct sweet taste. Valai Palam (Banana), Palla Palam (Jackfruit) and Ma Palam (Mango) are known as 'mukanigal' three fruits which are popular across Tamil Nadu for their cultural and medicinal value.

SIRUMALAI HILL BANANA

Sirumalai banana is essential ingredient of Panchamirdhan which is offered to Lord Muruga at Palani temple. It is also a good shade plant for coffee farms in sirumalai region. Locals say that sirumalai banana will never go bad and its taste increases as it ages. Even when the peel goes dark, the fruit inside will be perfectly fine.

The Panchamirdham at Arulmigu Dhandayuthapani Swamy Temple (Palani) is only made with Sirumalai and Virupakshi hill banana. This gives cultivators a predictable demand centre. Apart from that, sirumalai banana is locally much sought after due its sweet taste. Based on feedback given by cultivators, it seems sirumalai banana fetches 30-40% more compared to regular variety. Compared to Virupakshi, Sirumalai banana's sweetness gets increased in post harvest stage.

POCHAMPALLY IKAT

Pochampally Ikat is a traditional weaving style being pursued by weavers of Bhoodan Pochampally village of Yadadri Bhongir district. The weaving survives in a few more villages like Koyalgudam, Choutuppal, Siripuram, Bhuvanagiri, Puttapaka and Gattuppala and a few villages around them mostly in Pochampally and Chouttupal division. The Pochampally Handloom Weavers Cooperative Society has 915 individuals and around 3,000 weavers in the town today.

POCHAMPALLY IKAT

Pochampally Ikat is visually identified by the 'chowkra' design which is a diamond within a square, or its derivatives, having diffused edges. It is made of natural materials such as cotton or silk or a combination of both.

In the sequential method of its production, the sequence of tying (or wrapping) and dyeing section of bundled yarn to a predetermined color scheme prior to weaving. Thus, the dye penetrates into the exposed section, while the tiled section remains undyed. Various design patterns of Pochampally ikat include single Ikat, double Ikat, chowkra design with different patterns like jewel, animals, geometric patterns etc. Telia Rumal is also one such type of double Ikat design.

The fabric so woven has been used as Sarees for centuries, and is now also used for furnishing, textile and textile goods. While the bifurcation of erstwhile Andhra Pradesh state has hurt its market, but new initiatives like face masks for Covid-19, bed sheets, online presence of products are still managing to attract a decent footfall into the town.

SILVER FILIGREE OF KARIMNAGAR

Filigree, earlier known as filigrann or filigrene, represents a delicate form of jewellery metalwork, and it is usually made of gold and silver. The pieces of work are accompanied by tiny beads or twisted threads, or both of these in combination. These are soldered together to the surface of a same metal object and arranged in the form of artistic motifs.

SILVER FILIGREE OF KARIMNAGAR

The roots of Filigree can also be traced back to the Italian and French metal work from 17th to 19th century. The English word filigree is derived from the Latin word "filum" which means thread and "granum" means grain that signifies a small bead.

Karimnagar region in Telangana is home to many highly skilled artists who practise the delicate craftsmanship called filigree. They are skilled in creating many articles through Silver Filigree such as spoons, cigarette cases, buttons boxes, ashtrays, jewellery, buttons pill boxes, paandans and also perfume containers. They create special designs involving Peacock, parrots and fish which are clearly depicted in the perfume containers. The artisans of Karimnagar display fine mastery wherein they twist the delicate silver wire into delicate loops. These are knitted in a form of zigzag pattern which results in an intricate lace like appearance.

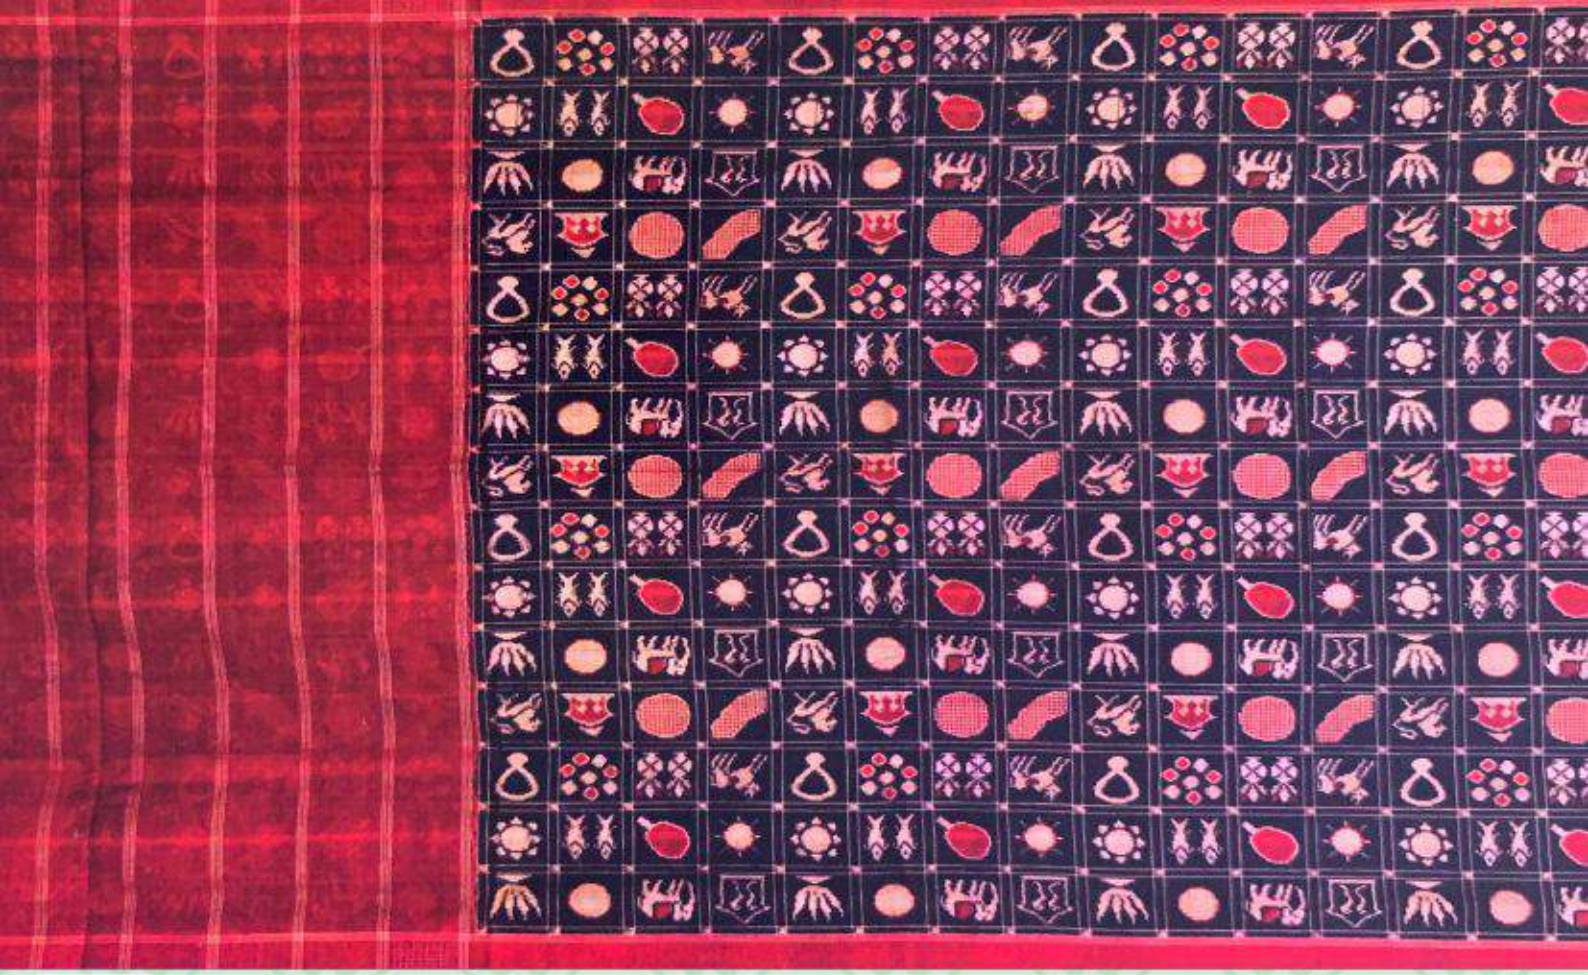

Filigree work, which is made using the twisted silver wire ushers a rare charm. The silversmiths crimp the thin strips of fine silver and create loops that are filled with designs formed by thicker and attractive silver strips. These strips and fine silver are further deftly soldered. The versatility of the art is not restricted or limited by tradition.

TELIA RUMAL

Telia rumal is the method of oil treatment on yarn. It is known for two-fold Ikat weaving with twist and weft structure using vegetable dyes. It originated in Chirala district of Andhra Pradesh. Now the skill is being taken forward by the weavers of Puttapaka village of Narayanpur mandal of Yadadri Bhongir district.

TELIA RUMAL

Pulanpaka has more than 700 looms at the moment. Noted designer Gajam family has been making telia rumal for 75 years now. They have likewise have been granting the information on this unpredictable art to neighborhood weavers as well.

The previous designs of telia rumal used to be careful geometric or vegetal examples because of the inclination of the benefactors. However, after 1930s, the specialists began fusing non-literal components like lions, elephants, flying creatures, tickers and even planes, which required better weaving aptitudes. It is no longer tissue size pieces that epicureans can purchase. The families associated with weaving presently make saris, dupattas, dress materials and other specially made pieces with similar strategies and intriguing examples.

BANARAS BROCADES & SAREES

Banaras Brocades and Sarees are hand-made using finely woven silk, cotton and decorated with intricate designs using zari (gold and silver thread); this ornamentation is what makes the sarees heavy. Their special characteristics are Mughal-inspired designs/elements such as intricate floral and foliate motifs, such as kalga and bel. Other features are compact weaving, and figures with small details, metallic visual effects, 'jali' (a net-like pattern) and 'meena' work. Various types of sarees like Jamdani, Jangla, Jamwar, Tanchoi, Tissue, Cutwork, Butidaar, Sifon are traditional popular designs. Brocades like Kimkhab, Gyaser, Gyanta, Thanka, Pemachandi, Badalchandi are popular.

BANARAS BROCADES & SAREES

This art flourished during the Vedic times, reached its zenith during Mughal period and is mentioned in historical records like Jataka, Pali texts, texts by Patanjali and more recently District Gazetteers during British rule. Initially, muslims practiced it but now both hindus and muslims are involved. The original Banaras weaving techniques is Kadhua weaving but due the demand of products now the Fekua weaving are used here with the support of Jacquard and Shuttle. In past, the whole technique was without Jacquard with support of Akra-Manda, Naka-jala-taka and this was the rare handwoven method. Around 22 steps involving up to 17 people are used to make one finished product. Now a variety of stoles (dupatta) and other items are also made using this unique exotic method.

BANARAS GULABI MEENAKARI CRAFT

The pink enamel (Gulabi Meenakari) was brought to India by Persians in the 17th century during the Mughal period, attained its peak in Persian court during Qajar dynasty. The Banaras specialty is its Pink Meena on white enamel and often employs a lotus motif. Many people work on the product - goldsmith, ghaaria (engraver), the chitteria (designer), and jadiya who applies the gems on the gold.

BANARAS GULABI MEENAKARI CRAFT

Meenakari, also called enamelling, is the art of decorating a metal surface by fusing mineral substances on it. The process is often applied to kundan—articles of jewelry studded with gemstones set with a layer of gold foil between the stone and the mount on one side, while the reverse is lavishly enamelled using the meena technique. The luster of the meena increases over time due to contact with the wearer's body and clothes.

The brilliance of the diamonds and other stones is effectively complemented by the multihued enamel of the meena. The present meenakars in Varanasi claimed that the position of the art of meenakari was prosperous till about hundred years ago. Now, only a few artisans are involved in an otherwise flourishing industry of the past.

BANARAS METAL REPOUSSE CRAFT

The craft is socio-culturally associated with the people of Banaras due to its generational legacy. It is now the 5th generation that is working in this area. In Varanasi, this art is mainly practiced by the Kasera Community in the Kaashipura area. The unique repoussé technique is sometimes referred to as 'chasing', or embossing (Khal - Ubhar Ka Kaam).

BANARAS METAL REPOUSSE CRAFT

The art has been preserved in the lanes of old Varanasi for generations, making various type of faces of God & Goddess, Gold and Silver dresses, traditional ornaments, doors and wall decoration in the temples, gold and silver utensils.

In the Mahakumbh Mela – Rath, Singhasan, Hauda, Chhatra, Chawar, Dand and other related products are available. Nearly 500 metal artisans are still working and few are much popular in the country for their exclusive work in the various important temples like Shree Kashi Vishwanath Temple, Golden Temple Amritsar, Tarn Taarn Gurudwara, Jain temple at Shravanbelgola, etc.

GORAKHPUR TERRACOTA

Gorakhpur Terracota is an age old craft of the Gorakhpur region and it is largely spread over the villages of Padri Bazar, Belwa Raipur,Jungle Ekla No-1, Jungle Ekla No-2 in Chargawanblock and Aurangabad, Bharwalia, Langadi Gularia, Budhadih, Amawa, Ekla etc in Bhathat block of Gorakhpur. The art could not spread forward since it required clay of specific type which was found in the ponds present in these areas.

GORAKHPUR TERRACOTA

The craftsmen belong to 'Prajapati' caste, the Terracotta craft of Gorakhpur is an example of traditional art form thriving over generations. The craftsmen make various animal figures like, horses, elephants, camel, goat, ox etc with hand applied ornamentation. For this, refined clay is partially dried & cast, moulded or hand worked into desired shape. After drying it thoroughly, it is placed in a kiln & fired. Then the hot ware is covered with sand to cool. Some of the major products of craftsmanship include animal motifs like elephant Table, Hauda elephants, Mahawatdar horse, Deer, Camel etc. Further religious idols like Five-faced Ganesha, singled-faced Ganesha, Musical troupe of humans & Ganesha are also quite common. Other decorative items like camel cart, bullock-cart, horse-cart, camel-lamp, lantern, chandeliers, Hanging bells etc. are also popularly showcased.

GHAZIPUR WALL HANGINGS

Ghazipur wall hangings are interior decor items that are handcrafted in the small city of Ghazipur in Uttar Pradesh. These traditional handloom products are woven by skilled craftspeople with the help of simple sketch diagrams and involve techniques like: Handwoven in pit loom (without Jacquard), Rapping with embroidery and Pasting work. They combine different yarns including jute and cotton, and use a blend of different colors to ensure not only strength but also an unusual unique texture.

GHAZIPUR WALL HANGINGS

The use of differing textures also forms part of the presentation of the patterning and design. These Ghazipur wall decorative hangings are woven on the handloom and their intricate patterning, colors and designs have wide appeal. A large range of designs bears testimony to the skill of the weavers, from representation of figures of Hindu gods and goddesses to intricate and detailed landscape arts with patterns of houses, lawns, forests, interiors, birds and animals.

The major production area is Devkali block and Saidpur of Ghazipur district and in Varanasi, Chandauli, Mirzapur districts of Uttar Pradesh.

HANDMADE CARPET OF BHADHOI

This type of the hand-knotted carpet is manufactured on a vertical wooden loom by a unique weaving technique: with the use of knots, iron punja. Thick cotton and woolen yarns are used in the warp ends while wool is used in the width direction. These looms are equipped with a double layer of warp ends separator rods and platforms.

Designs depicting flowers, animals, gardens, trees and trellises are used in various hues and ways to liven up these floor coverings. The production process commences with the selection of woolen yarns which are generally bought from domestic and international circuits.

The wool used in carpets varies according to the quality, design and style and so do the colours. The original place of Bhadohi carpet has emerged from village Madho Singh Ghosia.

LUCKNOW CHIKAN CRAFT

Lucknow Chikan Craft is handiwork skill based craft. It is a type of embroidery on white fabric with white thread, with predominantly floral designs executed on fine cotton with untwisted threads of white cotton, rayon or silk. Chikankari is something like unity in diversity i.e. it includes some simple and complex stitches giving it an effect, which is simple, gentle and delicate.

LUCKNOW CHIKAN CRAFT

The process of Chikankari undergoes five different stages, namely, cutting, stitching, printing, embroidery, washing and finishing. The most common motif used is that of a creeper. Individual floral motifs may embellish the entire garment or just one corner. The different products manufactured by artisans include Caps, Chapkan, Angrakha, Kurta, Kurta-Kameez, Applique angrakha, Chikan T-shirt Kurta and Embroidered Sherwani.

LUCKNOW ZARDOZI

Zardozi work has two distinct categories known as karchobi and kamdani. The embroidery done on velvet or heavy satin generally for tent coverages, furnishings, etc. traditionally with badla was called karchobi. Kamdani generally refers to the work done on muslin, silk and other fabrics. The work here is done with great deal of minute skill in delicate rhythm. This technique remained more popular on the dresses, coverlets, caps and many miscellaneous items.

LUCKNOW ZARDOZI

The process of zardozi revolves around five basic designs which have larger variation. These basic designs are jail (geometric design) (Line-drawings 56-70), bharat (filler design) (Line-drawings 71-76), patti (leaf), phul (flower), pankhi (bird), janwar (animal).

The Zardozi products incudes cane scabbards for swords and daggers, canopies, coats, caps, ghagras, covers for boxes, combs and mirrors, umbrellas, fans, shoes, bags, belt, saddle cloths, seat covers, carpets, bolsters, etc. and a variety of other objects. The artisans are also performing embroidery on saris, suits, dupatta, and lahenga, Jackets, shirts, long skirts, and longer scarves, etc.

MANGO MALIHABADI DUSSEHERI

Malihabadi Dusseheri is a variety of mango with fibreless flesh and with pleasant flavour and taste. Mango Malihabadi Dusseheri has a small to medium sized fruit with elongated shape, which is yellow

Dusseheri ripens after 6-7 days of harvesting at maturity and it stays for 5 days after ripening. Dusseheri mango grows well in tropical climate. The ideal temperature range for mango is 20 to 30°C. Dry weather before blossoming is conducive to profuse flowering. Rain during flowering is detrimental to the crop as it interferes with pollination. in color, rich characteristic flavor and good keeping quality.

MEERUT SCISSORS

Meerut Scissors GI does not pertain to a specific Gram Panchayat or village or hamlet. It brings into its fold all the manufacturers residing in the district belonging to 'manufactured' category of GI products.

MEERUT SCISSORS

Meerut Scissors are entirely made from scrap metal and by hand. Manufacturers use 'kamani' (spring steel) bought from the railways or automobile industries making the input cost lower than fresh metal stocks at the same time contributing towards recycling of metal waste.

The scissors are known for their sharpness, sturdiness, reparability or reusability, ergonomic design, smoothness and casted brass handle. The industry manufacturing betel nut crackers, razors and scissors is one of the oldest dating back three centuries (360 years) in the district of Meerut. The scissors industry is approximately ninety years old; manufacturers having inherited the craft from their ancestors.

MIRZAPUR HANDMADE DURRIES

The Mirzapur Handmade Durrie is one among a multitude of styles of floor coverings. They are defined essentially by the use of the "Panja" for weaving, and are also known for their fairly bold colors and patterns.

Mirzapur Handmade Durries are woven in a weft faced plain weave on simple horizontal looms. Woolen yarns are mostly used; this gives them a sturdy and flat appearance. The mix of traditional and contemporary designs is evidence of a high degree of workmanship. The uniqueness of Mirzapur Handmade Durries lies in the fact that the whole process is entirely manual, starting from designing and weaving to finishing.

VARANASI GLASS BEADS

Varanasi is the oldest glass bead manufacturing Hub in modern India since 1940. It has the largest glass bead exports from India and has the biggest number of skilled artisans for the same. Archeological findings indicate that 2000 yrs old glass making evidences have been found near Basti (UP) and that by 1000 BC glass bead making started in northern India.

VARANASI GLASS BEADS

This craft is complete handicraft as it involves minimal intervention of tools. The craftsmanship has been passed mostly orally from one generation to the other (nearly 3 lakh design exist in Varanasi). Two type of producers exist here: small scale industries and artisans working from home with their own resources.

Different types of beads are used to ornament various products like clothing, decorative items, curtains, purses, clothing accessories, jewelry. More than 2,000 artisans are involved in bead production and handicrafts in Varanasi, with most of them being concentrated in the areas of Chandpur, Kandwan and Ramnagar. Major products include earrings, bracelets and neck pieces made out of multi colored glass beads.

VARANASI SOFT STONE JALI WORK

With the support of King of Varanasi, this Jali work craft emerged around the Ramnagar Fort area. Today the 4th generation craftsmen are working here. The artisans mostly belong to SC and OBC castes. They make them in accordance with their own perspective of history and mythology.

VARANASI SOFT STONE JALI WORK

Jali or fretwork is intricately carved on soft stone (monolithic, and without any joints) and its process requires supreme mastery of masonry and design making. The Varanasi jali work epitomizes both high skill and superior quality of craftsmanship. Delicately chiseled and decorated with inlay work these elaborately carved jalis demand time in their making along with the skill and creativity.

The jali craft work can be seen on forts, zamindari homes, places of worship and ancient monuments all of which are a testimony of its antiquity. Statues of religious significance are also made using this technique. To further enhance the beauty of these sculptures they would be embedded with semi-precious stones and shell work. Today small items of utility and decor are also produced such as table tops, boxes, coasters, trays, etc. The popular 'Elephant within Elephant' and other such pieces of birds, animals, statues, etc are the result of the skills and sheer hard work of these craftsmen.

VARANASI WOODEN LACQUERWARE & TOYS

Varanasi and Mirzapur in Uttar Pradesh are famous for their wooden lacquerware and wooden toys. The craftsmen here claim to belong to the Kunder Kharadi Samaj. It is an ancient craft and Varanasi has been a major center for the same. Sal or sheesham is the raw material used. Designs are created with the natural veins of the wood.

VARANASI WOODEN LACQUERWARE & TOYS

These toys are made without any joints, and are attractive and safe playthings for children. The colours used are bright and primary. Kashmiri Ganj and Khojwa are the major centers of production. The toys have a ritual significance also and are not made just for play.

This craft plays a pivotal role in the lives of the artisans, since when a child is born a new lathe is added to the family possessions. In fact, when a marriage is being fixed the boy's family makes sure that the bride-to-be is familiar with the lathe. Sets of birds, animals, musicians and dance ensembles are also available packed in boxes.

WOODEN HANDICRAFT OF SAHARANPUR

The history of wooden handicraft industry in Saharanpur dates back to 400 years back in Mughal era when some craftsman from Kashmir came back and settled in Saharanpur in search of bread and butter and eventually settled in the city to make the craft known worldwide as the Wooden Carving Industry of Saharanpur. With the seat of Mughal empire and the British in Delhi and the royalty associated with the classic wooden handicrafts, Saharanpur could develop itself as an industry overtime with generations of families becoming a part of this trade.

WOODEN HANDICRAFT OF SAHARANPUR

In 2014, the industry was given a GI tag. Initially, the industry was limited to household carving done on Sheesham wood which would be readily available in Saharanpur and the finished product would be supplied to markets of Delhi and Lucknow, but overtime with increased demand, the use of wood like Mango and Keekar also grew with greater mechanisation. The products manufactured here still preserve with it the fragrance of years of heritage and history and the intricate handwork of the labourers. The products range from furniture, wall decors, wooden panels, antiques, gift items etc. In this endeavour of Atmanirbhar Bharat, the wooden handicraft of Saharanpur can serve as an important substitute to multiple imports and an attempt to regain the old glory of the city.

BENGAL PATACHITRA

Bengal Patachitra is a traditional, cloth-based scroll painting mainly practiced by painters called Chitrakars or Patuas in Naya village in the Pingla block of West Medinipur district of West Bengal.

The word 'Pata' comes from the sanskrit word 'Patta', meaning cloth and 'Chitra' refers to painting. In Patachitra, stories are painted as frames on long scrolls and the Patuas who paint Patas, gradually unfurl them while presenting the story through their songs.

One of the fascinating aspects of Patachitra is the use of natural colours derived from local sources like fruits and flowers. The Patuas paint and sing on various themes like mythological tales (Ramayana, Mahabharata, Mangalkabya), historical and contemporary themes (biographies of great personalities, nuclear warfare) and social issues (women empowerment, child right, health, literacy).

JOYNAGAR MOA

Joynagar Moa is one of those few Bengali delicacies of Bengal that have managed to keep it original form and texture intact even today. It is a famous mouth-watering seasonal sweet delicacy of West Bengal produced mainly during winter. It is prepared from Kanakchur Khoi an aromatic rice and gur (date palm jaggery) and gawa ghee (a type of clarified butter made from cow's milk), cardamom, cashew, rasins and posto (poppy seed).

JOYNAGAR MOA

This gur which is unique in its place of origin Joynagar. This gur is the core and binder of popped rice and other condiments which constitute the round shaped Joynagar Moa. The flavour and sweetness of this gur make this genre of Moa - a popular and lovable combination of taste and aroma with a long tradition.

This variety of Moa originated in Joynagar city of South 24 Parganas district in the Indian State of West Bengal. Joynagar Moa Nirmankari Society has obtained Geographical Indication Registration for Joynagar Moa in 2015. For a long time, this sweet Moa of Joynagar has impressed many people, not only in different district of West Bengal but also in other states by its sweet scent, flavor and quality.

MADHUR KATHI MATS

Paschim Medinipur district has a tradition of mat weaving known as Madhur Kathi. Mathur Kathi mats absorb sweat and do not emit heat, making them appropriate to the humid climate of the region.

MADHUR KATHI MATS

There are three types of Madhur Kathi mats - ekhrokha, do rokha, and masland mats. EkhRokha are the simplest, light and thin mats while do rokha or double mats are thicker mats. Masland is of a higher quality having distinctive patterns, requires more than two people to weave it, and hence has the highest price amongst the three.

Madhur kathi involves weaving reed from madhur kottir (a sedge of plant named Cyperus) and deriving maroon / red colours from seeds of Achiote tree (also known as Rang Gach in Paschim Medinipur), black dyes from haritaki fruit and other colours from vegetable dyes. The dyed mats are then dried in sun before being used for weaving. Madhur Kathi was granted GI tag by Indian Patent Office in March 2018.

MIHIDANA

The word 'Mihidana' is derived from two words, mihi – fine and dana – grain, meaning 'fine grain'. This sweet dish is prepared by using ingredients such as Gobindobhog rice, Kaminibhog rice, sugar, saffron, gram flour, ghee. The Gobindobhog rice is short grain, aromatic, sticky rice with a buttery taste and is traditionally used in offerings to the family deity of the Setts of Kolkata - Govindajiu.

The human skill to prepare Mihidana has been acquired through generations. Mihidana got registered as GI on March 13, 2015 under Geographical indication number 526, falling in the class – 30 – in food stuff.

SITABHOG

Sitabhog, a sweet dish resembling rice or seviaan, is made up of ingredients namely cottage cheese (Chhana), gram flour or besan, Gobindobhog rice flour, sugar, bay leaves, cloves, ghee. It looks as if white rice is served with small pieces of Gulab Jamuns. These small Gulab Jamuns are made up of flour, milk powder and ghee and are known as Nikhuti.

A special starch has been developed by scientists that increase its shelf life. As such, the shelf life of Sitabhog is just one day and therefore, transporting it to other parts of India becomes difficult without proper packaging. Sitabhog was registered on March 13, 2015 under Geographical indication number 525.

TULAIPANJI RICE

Tulaipanji rice is non-basmati aromatic rice with GI status. It is being produced mostly in the Uttar Dinjapur district. There are only some scattered pockets in the Dakshin Dinajpur district which do cultivation of Tulaipanji rice. Mohiniganj area of North Dinajpur is famous for Tulaipanji rice.

TULAIPANJI RICE

The first modern mention of Tulaipanji rice is found in the district Gazetteer of Dinjapur written by Francis Buchanan Hamilton in the year 1833. There are some old Bengali literatures which mentions the use of Tulaipanji rice for serving guests during social occasions. It was also used for moments like making Pyasam (Kheer) for guests during home arrivals. This rice has been in existence for more than 1000 years and has been preserved by the cultivators of Dinjapur area and particularly in Present day North Dinjapur district.

The farmers producing the Tulaipanji rice in this district get good price for their product. The online selling of this branded rice has also increased their income level. However the scale of production of Tulaipanji rice in South Dinjapur district is too low and too scattered to gain any substantial benefit. An effort in increasing the cultivation area of Tulaipanji rice in district and then forming a Farmer Producer organization can help a lot in this direction.

WOODEN MASK OF KUSHMANDI

The masks are usually adorned by the Rajbanshis community during the monsoons, especially during the cultivation season. This is an ethnic group found in North Bengal and nearby areas. Rajbanshi means royal community and they have their own specific cultural practices. There is a ritualistic dance form called Gomira dance which is done in adoration of the Gods to usher good fortune and drive out evil forces.

WOODEN MASK OF KUSHMANDI

There is another type of Mask that is used in household for the decoration purpose. The two types of masks are made by the same process and materials, with some difference between them. If the mask is to be used for the purpose of dancing, only then the eyes, mouth, etc are hollowed out. The masks that are crafted for decoration purposes are also bulkier and heavier than the mask used in Gomira dance. Recently the artists are making diversified products in the form of small fridge magnets, lamp shades etc.

Kushmandi's Wooden Mask got the GI status through the application made by Mahisbathan Hastashilpa Samabay Samiti Limited in 2018. Approximately, one thousand artisans are involved in carving of wooden mask.
